

Guidance measures for Disability Services in the context of current high levels of Covid 19 transmission rates in the community

Effective from 5th January 2021

Introduction:

The purpose of this document is to clarify measures to be undertaken to ensure disability services can continue to operate safely during the current phase of the Covid-19 pandemic. The following underpinning principles should be adhered to by all service providers;

- It is important to emphasise that disability services remains within the category of 'essential services';
- Service providers are respectfully asked not to take unilateral action in terms of service closures; alternatively, each provider must strictly adhere to the following measures under the governance and accountability arrangements of the relevant CHO;
- It is critical that each Service Provider have in place a robust communications plan that ensures each service user and carers/ families have a clear understanding of services to be provided during this current phase.

In terms of specific measures for disability services, the following guidance applies and which is under continuing review and will be guided by contemporary Public Health advice.

1. Residential and home support/ personal assistant services continue to be prioritised and delivered subject to a revised Risk Assessment, Public Health Guidance and direction (inclusive of IPC management procedures).
2. In the context of residential respite service provision, medically compromised service users to remain at home and to receive home support where possible and subject to risk assessment. Residential respite providers to review risk assessment for each individual. Prioritisation of service to reflect risk assessment and prioritisation criteria should facilitate access, subject to the foregoing; for example, including where there are complex health and social care needs including behavioural support requirements. This principle should be applied / undertaken on a case by case basis and having undertaken a risk assessment.
3. Assessment of need under the Disability Act (and the current scheme to eliminate overdue assessments) continues to be a priority. Attention is drawn to guidance previously provided in terms of conducting remote assessments which can be found as follows;

4. In the context of day service provision, the following guidance should be implemented by support providers as follows;

- i. Medically compromised service users to remain at home and where possible, to receive the same number of hours support in the home as they had been in receipt of pre-Christmas in day service locations;
- ii. Providers to review risk assessment for each individual. Consideration of service user capacity to adopt COVID guidance and IPC protocols should form part of the risk assessment undertaken. Prioritisation of service to reflect risk assessment and prioritisation criteria previously developed and implemented since day services resumed in August 2020 (that is; Guidance to support the Framework for the Resumption of Adult Disability Day Services) and which can be found here;

- iii. Providers to review how they are providing services in locations to ensure reduction in contacts. Hubs/bubbles to be organised where possible with dedicated staff for dedicated service users;
- iv. CHOs and providers are reminded of additional financial supports provided in Qtr 4 (2020) which should facilitate some solutions to additional challenges as a result of the current restrictions; for example, Outreach supports, rent of space, IT equipment;
- v. Where families are uncomfortable with allowing their son/daughter to return to a day service location, a package of support to be agreed with the family bearing in mind the wishes of the family and the needs of the service user.
